Relationships is one of our core principles at Stampin' Up!®—our relationships are one of the most important, if not the most important, thing in our lives. I feel strongly about that and recently have had a couple of experiences that affirm that.

I did a workshop and was reminded about the amazing things that happen when people gather together to create. Watching guests interact, I could see how much it meant to these women (and all of us!) to have fun, to visit, to listen . . . to connect.

Also, I've written and posted a handful of hand-stamped cards—some to close friends and family members, others to people I don't know well but for various reasons wanted to thank or encourage. Sharing what we create is a powerful yet simple way to reach out and strengthen relationships.

Our relationships with each other are really what matters and I'm so grateful that what we do at Stampin' Up! supports those relationships.

Happy stampin'!
